

BMW Performance Side Skirts & Rear Diffuser Installed (with pictures)

---

So I fitted the BMW performance side skirts and BMW performance rear diffuser.

We introduced the carbon rear diffuser available from Rennzport. See here:

<http://www.bmwfanatics.co.za/showthread.php?tid=10958>

See our previous threads on the same products as well as our black chrome tailpipes.

<http://www.bmwfanatics.co.za/showthread.php?tid=9191>

<http://www.bmwfanatics.co.za/showthread.php?tid=7947>

<http://www.bmwfanatics.co.za/showthread.php?tid=4261>

Revo will be introducing the side skirts also available from Rennzport in the next few days.

I decided to go for the BMW performance side skirts and diffuser to go with the other BMW performance products on my car.

The rear diffuser is priced over R3000 and has a solid aggressive look and is ordered with 4 parts. The fourth part is a small carbon piece but this carbon piece alone cost over R5000. 🙄 So I decided not to add the carbon piece because I have a different idea for the center part of the diffuser.

Here are some pictures:

My plan is to carbon outlay this center piece and save two thousand rand.

Here is the diffuser installed and colour coded for my car.

Please note that a thin piece of lip has to be trimmed away from the original rear bumper (but it is on the inside and not really visible) to enable the rear diffuser to clip on. But this is easily filed or cut away.

Here are those beautiful side skirts with its aerodynamic look and racy flow. The skirts are priced over R3400 for two skirts per set. Included are all the clips and grills for an easy clip-on installation:

I am happy with the kit and almost completes my exterior modifications.

